COMMENTS ON CLEVELAND'S LETTER.

Differences of Opinion Called Forth—Proceedings of Various State Conventions—Political Notes.

August 21—Following is a copy of Hendricks letter of acceptance of the nomination for the Vice presidency:

INDIANAPOLIS Ind August 20 1884

—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your communication tendering me the nomination by the democratic convention at Chicago for the office of vice president of the States. May I repeat what I said on another occasion that it is a nomination which I had neither sought nor desired and yet I recognize and appreciate the high honor done me by the convention. of such a body pronounced with so generous unanimity, accompanied with so generous expression of esteem and confidence ought to all personal desires and preferences of my own. It is from a deep sense of public duty that I accept the nomination and I shall abide the judgment of my countrymen. I have examined with the declaration of principles adopted by the convention, a copy of which you submitted to me, and cordially endorse and approve the same. I am your obedient servant

CLEVELAND'S LETTER.

Difference of Opinion Expressed by the Eastern Papers.

Aug 20—[Special]—The Sun says: has written his letter of acceptance and elsewhere. It has the merit of comparatively but no other that we can discern. He in the principles set forth in the Chicago his views about civil service reform would please those republicans who ask d he thinks the working classes to be protected and he indites a few platitudes to any season. Will this spiritless writing the feeblest and most un document that a like occasion in our however inspired dispel the feeling of discord which is abroad and allay the doubts and the democratic party? Is there in it that will gather to Cleveland the of that party, reconcile its factions and carry victory in this memorable contest? We Grover Cleveland's letter of acceptance every point of view an unfortunate production.

THE STAR

Butler's letter having been drawn letter of acceptance is now delivered to and somewhat mystified party. Possibly of the democratic nominee was not at all by the vigorous and menacing attitude of of the people's party, but when we perused this mildly inoffensive document we are puzzled other rational explanation for the delay letter is exceedingly dignified and cautious verge of temerity. After a necessarily perusal before going to press we cannot recall a solitary good word to say for the democratic or even a mention of that historical or beyond a passing allusion to the platform statement of democratic faith. The platform relating to labor at elaborate but vague and In fact the only matters frankly discussed the laws internal improvements and the service. There is not a word about the tariff grabbers. On the score of brevity but not comprehensiveness the letter is to be

GENERAL COMMENT

The Journal of Commerce democratic, prints a letter but says not a word has several squibs such as the following: have thought Cleveland would express himself in a letter of acceptance with some upon the tariff. Had so he approves principle embodied in the Chicago platform prescribes free trade for free traders and protection for protectionists.

The Evening Journal says: Twice only does the touch the clay of practical politics. During contest he makes a sly appeal to the German drinking men to support him. In the of natural water ways he is also practical that there is a chance for a heavy river and harbor bill of the tu

THE TIMES

The Times says: Cleveland's propositions relating to the laboring class are candid straightforward and sensible. They will be accepted by workingman and be found to be consistent with his course in the office he now holds. The principles that he lays down as to immigration practicable and will be generally approved. He the generous attitude of the country to all who wish the rights with the responsibilities of citizenship but he would not encourage the migration of those who do not want to become citizens.

WORDS OF PRAISE

The Journal says: Honesty and frugality is his. This phrase is worth all the rest and should the democratic watchword. of course pleased.

The World says: These are words of a manly and forward democratic citizen. The letter is free from sophistry demagogism and groveling to voters and it is a document that will only strengthen the position of the democratic standard bearer.

THE HERALD

The Herald says: Cleveland's letter of acceptance typical for its clear good sense and its comprehension, and yet his statement of the leading points political condition is characteristic of the man is always equal to the occasion that arises and standing upon his record has no explanations to make and no need to conceal his thoughts in a of words.

THE "TRIBUNE"

The Tribune says: There is nothing in Mr Cleveland's brief letter of acceptance to show why it should have been kept back so long. Nor is there anything to justify its final publication except as a formality. It is commonplace in the extreme. It is a very small letter by a very small man.

THE PHILADELPHIA PRESS

PHILADELPHIA, Aug 20—[Special]—The Press says: History will some day read the collapse of the democratic party in the acceptance of Grover Cleveland. It will be counted little less than in that a party numbering near half the voters nation had for its candidate a man who put the barren utterances of a barren mind on the issues of the campaign. We commend the letter to every voter. We trust no man will fail to read it, learn from it the cowardice narrowness and limitations of the man whom a great party has put in the fore part of battle. If he has opinions he does not dare to express them and where he dares them he lacks ability to express. No voter let politics be what they may will read this extraordinary production without disappointment.

The Times says: Cleveland has been employing his leisure in his sylvan retreat to admirable purpose in condensing his letter of acceptance within reasonable limits. The document which is what might have been expected from a man with such an admirable public record, is worthy of most careful perusal. It is sensible and straightforward advocating the soundest principles of governmental policy and is highly creditable to its author.

AT WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON Aug 20—[Special]—Cleveland's letter of acceptance was disappointing to both democrats and republicans here. It is generally pronounced weak. The democrats profess to be well pleased with it but there is no enthusiasm over it. Republicans generally laugh at it and many democrats say that his failure to define his position on the tariff which they and thousands of democrats everywhere thought he would do in his letter will help him any. The letter caused very little discussion. It is generally conceded that there is nothing in it to talk about and that its only merit is its brevity.

STATE CONVENTIONS.

Greenbackers Follow Butler's Advice by Fusing with the Minority

TEXAS DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

HOUSTON, Aug. 20—The democratic state convention assembled at 10 A. M. Permanent organization was effected and the report of the committee on platform was unanimously adopted. The platform endorses the national democratic platform, declares in favor of common free schools for both white and black children, opposes the enactment of a herd law, recommends that the legislature of the state should limit the amount of real estate owned or held by corporations, declares that school lands are a sacred trust in the custody of the legislature, and advocates selling such lands until actual settlers desire to purchase the same.

The majority of the committee on resolutions in introduced a motion that the two-thirds rule be suspended. A contest, debate and call of the roll by counties followed and the two thirds rule was sustained by a vote of 306 yeas to 187 nays.

Several motions to adjourn were voted down. The only name presented for governor was Ireland. The rules were suspended and John Ireland was renominated for governor by acclamation amid great enthusiasm. State Senator Barnett Gibbs of Dallas, was nominated for lieutenant governor by acclamation. Gibbs is the youngest man ever nominated for lieutenant governor of Texas.

Ireland and Gibbs addressed the convention which then adjourned to 6 P. M.

CONNECTICUT REPUBLICAN CONVENTION

NEW HAVEN Aug 20—At the republican state convention Judge W. T. Elmer was elected temporary chairman, who in a speech said James G. Blaine [illegible] of any man in the world for [illegible]. John A. Tibbits was elected permanent president and on assuming the chair said the principles upon which the republican party was founded were its principles to-day. He arraigned the democratic party for its position during the war and said its policy on the tariff would reduce the honest labor of America to the condition of pauper labor. He eulogized James G. Blaine as the most illustrious man of his time [Applause] He also eulogized Gen. Logan.

The convention then voted to take an informal ballot for candidate for governor. The names of General W. H. Buckley, Phineas C. Lounsbery and Henry B. Harrison were presented. On the second ballot for governor Henry B. Harrison was nominated.

Following is the platform adopted by the republican state convention: The republicans of Connecticut, in convention assembled, declare that they heartily ratify the nominations of James G. Blaine and John A. Logan, that they indorse the declarations of principles contained in the platform of the republican party, adopted at its recent convention in Chicago, and the letters of acceptance of the candidates and they are especially gratified with the sound doctrines upon the tariff therein set forth in the spirit of [illegible] that will [illegible] country [illegible] deserving [illegible] name [illegible] at one of the [illegible] and protect its citizens at home and abroad and they present to the electors of Connecticut in the persons of Henry B. Harrison and his associates upon the state ticket candidates worthy of their cordial support.

MICHIGAN GREENBACK CONVENTION

DETROIT Aug 20—The Michigan greenbackers met this morning. After a heated discussion a resolution in favor of fusion was adopted. The platform adopted reaffirms the national platform, commends Butler's letter as worthy of support of the people, deplores the suffering of the manufacturers, mercantile, producing and laboring classes which are attributed to contraction of the volume of money and excess of taxation, favors immigration of industrious foreigners, demands the enactment of a mechanics' lien law giving to a laborer the first lien for wages due [illegible] become due, denounces the system of contract labor, asks amendments of the bureau of labor statistics, demands the protection of the lives and health of the employes in industrial institutions, demands the enactment of a just system of taxation and heartily commends the administration of Governor Begole. Begole was then nominated by acclamation and the convention adjourned till the afternoon.

The convention at the afternoon session nominated the following, which completes the fusion ticket: Attorney General Francis M. Cook; Commissioner of the State Land Office J. [illegible]; Superintendent of Public Instruction David Parsons.

ILLINOIS GREENBACK CONVENTION

BLOOMINGTON Ill Aug 20—Forty four delegates assembled at 3 P. M. yesterday pursuant to a call for the greenback anti monopoly labor convention of the state. Hon A. J. Streeter of Danville was chosen temporary and permanent chairman. He stated the object to be to nominate a state ticket and presidential electors for Butler and West. The strife between the greenback labor factions and the straight out greenbackers began at once and continued until the final adjournment, revealing quite a wide and deep chasm. On one side were the regulars who met pursuant to a call of Dr Waters of this city to-day and those who will obey McKeighan's call and assemble here on the 27th of this month. A motion to adjourn to the 27th caused a hot discussion and was lost. The candidacy of Butler was indorsed. A motion to nominate a ticket and appoint a committee to harmonize differences with the convention of the 27th was lost. At the evening session a motion to choose presidential electors was lost and several straight out greenbackers retired. The convention finally adjourned until the 27th. The McKeighan delegates have been invited to take part in its deliberations.

MISSOURI GREENBACK CONVENTION

KANSAS CITY Aug 20—The greenback state convention met to-day, 175 delegates being present. A platform was adopted inviting the various liberal political organizations of the state to unite with the greenbackers in an effort to overthrow the bourbon dynasty in Missouri. To that end the party presents the name of Nicholas Ford for governor and declares it to the best interest of the party not to make other nominations for state officers, leaving the matter to the central committee. The convention is understood to favor fusion with the republicans, leaving with the latter party the nomination of the remainder of the state ticket.

NEW JERSEY DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

TRENTON Aug 20—The democratic state convention met at noon. General McClellan temporary chairman said the democratic party deserved success and must have it as time brought its revenges. Recess.

POLITICAL POINTS

The Situation in Ohio—A Forcible Campaign Document—Etc

WASHINGTON Aug 20—[Special]—Judge Lawrence of Ohio who is perhaps the best informed man in Washington in political matters in Ohio said to your correspondent to-day that the prohibition candidate in that state will poll about 6000 votes in November. That he said is what they generally poll in a presidential year. In what we call an off year they have run up to 15,000, but in a presidential year where the question of prohibition is not involved, for that is a local question, the prohibition vote in Ohio is never very large. He says Ohio will give the republican ticket at least 20,000 majority in October and Blaine will carry it by 50,000 in November. He says the defeat of Converse for renomination is a pretty severe blow to the democrats. Converse was a tariff democrat and had been especially active in trying to get a bill through to increase the tariff on wool. There are 50,000 wool growers in Ohio and probably 25,000 are democrats. At the last session of congress when Converse tried to get his bill up nearly every democrat voted against it while every republican voted for it. Democrats in Converse's district have laid him aside solely because of his tariff views. The defeat of Converse Lawrence says is worth 5000 votes to the republicans in Ohio because it will be regarded by the wool growers as the defeat of the tariff question as a condemnation of wool tariff protection.

A FAVORABLE SHOWING

WASHINGTON Aug 20—[Special]—The republican congressional committee have now in the hands of the printer a statement prepared by the treasury department showing receipts and disbursements of the government from the organization to June 30 1845 and the amount of losses and the ratio of such losses per $1000 to the aggregate received and disbursed, arranged as nearly as practicable in periods of administrations, also in the periods prior and subsequent to June 30 1861. This document will be sent all over the country as a campaign document. It shows that the ratio of losses in the collection and disbursements of the public money has been decreased from [illegible] under Buchanan's administration to 1.8 mills under Arthur. It shows that prior to June 30 1861 the rates of loss per $1000 in the collection of customs was $2.10, while from July 1 1861 to June 30 1884 it was but ten cents. During the former period the ratio of losses in disbursements was [illegible] War navy pensions and Indians $8.33; during the latter period it was war navy pensions and Indians $1.

THE INDEPENDENT DESERTS CLEVELAND

NEW YORK August 20—[Special]—The Post says: The Independent has withdrawn from the support of Governor Cleveland on account of the Buffalo scandal. We understand the change of front is made by Bowen proprietor against the views of Dr Ward editor and Dr Twining associate editor. The article in which the change is announced takes the ground that one act of personal impurity if proved is sufficient to condemn anybody. In this regard the Independent takes considerably higher ground than the New Testament.

A REPLY TO EMPLOYES

WASHINGTON Aug 20—Dorman B. Eaton of the civil service commission has written a long letter in reply to various communications received from government employes asking for advice as to the payment by them of assessments for political purposes, the substance of which is that clerks are under no more obligations to pay than other citizens of the same means and that they should pay or refuse to pay as they would feel it a duty of a private citizen.

CLEVELAND'S MOVEMENTS

NEW YORK, Aug 20—[Special]—The Times says: Cleveland left Upper Saranac Monday going further into the wilderness for fishing and hunting. After camping on some unfrequented lake for a day or two he and Dr Ward will return to Saranac and then visit some other favorite spots in the Adirondacks. Possibly they may cross the woods coming out at a lower place. The governor is not expected in Albany until the last of the month.

THE LIGHT TURNED ON BUTLER

NEW YORK Aug 20—[Special]—The Post's Washington special says: Butler is soon to understand what it costs to defy the democratic party. The leaders have determined now that he has gone against them to take the role of the aggressor. They have a corps of clerks and writers at work in the library and elsewhere compiling his public record and making liberal extracts from the files of republican papers.

A REBUKE

The Herald rebukes certain journals which it says are making a great ado about the son of Senator Logan and his capers at West Point. Public discussion of his conduct is hardly in order. Presently some one will be discussing the possible bad temper of Cleveland's horse.

CONFERENCE WITH MRS PARNELL

She Submits a Proposition from her Son to the Political Parties of America.

BOSTON Aug 20—At the Parker house yesterday Mrs Parnell held a conference with a number of Catholic bishops and leaders of the Irish National league concerning the means by which the coming political contest of this country could be turned to the advancement of Ireland's cause. It is understood that Mrs Parnell represented her son at the conference. Mrs Parnell submitted the details of a scheme for the benefit of Irish home industry which she stated was devised by her son and is being put into practical execution.

Parnell, she said had formed an association in England and Ireland of capitalists and manufacturers whose aim is to encourage the home industry of Ireland. This association proposed to establish factories for the exclusive manufacture of Irish goods such as could not be manufactured in England or other countries, including such articles as laces, linens, friezes, woolens and tweeds. Preparations are already in progress for the establishment of such factories in different parts of Ireland. Mrs Parnell made the suggestion as coming from her son that the proposition be submitted to the republican and democratic parties, the acceptance of which by either would decide for which party the organized Irish vote would be cast.

Mrs Parnell stated that as these Irish goods could not be made in this country their importation could not in any sense conflict with American home industry. In as much as the association in England proposed to exclusively control the production Mr Parnell's proposition therefore was that a direct offer be submitted to the political parties of the United States as follows:

If [illegible] in accordance with friendly feeling expressed towards Ireland in America by American [illegible]

[illegible] can not be manufactured elsewhere than in Ireland and the importation of which would not compete with American productions then such party will receive the organized support of the Irishmen in America.

LEFT FOR NEW YORK

BOSTON Aug 20—Mrs Parnell leaves for New York to-day to take preliminary steps towards organizing Irish interests so that in case of action by either of the political parties the promises contained in the proposition can be fulfilled. During the conference it was stated that the reason why Alexander Sullivan so persistently refused re-election to the presidency of the Irish national league was he proposed to enter the canvass in support of Blaine, and did not wish to compromise the Irish-American vote by becoming a public speaker in support of the republican candidate while holding the office of president of the Irish national league.

MRS PARNELL MAKES A STATEMENT.

BOSTON, Aug 20—Mrs. Parnell explains, with regard to the report that she was named in the organization as a party to [illegible] Irish American [illegible] can vote that she [illegible] party and has not [illegible] of the [illegible] that she [illegible] support [illegible] with American [illegible] which she [illegible] entirely useful. Her only purpose is to direct attention to this industrial field which would be highly beneficial to both Ireland and America.

BUTLER SPEAKS

He Addresses a Large Crowd of Working men—Why he Could not Support the Democrats

PROVIDENCE Aug 20—General Butler spoke here yesterday afternoon in the presence of 5000 people, representatives of various trades union. Ten thousand were expected. After some preliminary ballooning leveled at newspapers General Butler told why he was identified with the laboring people and argued in favor of arbitration for the settlement of disputes between employer and employees. He cited the great railroad strike of Pennsylvania in 1876, in which millions of dollars worth of property was destroyed. When he first learned from talking with Tom Scott that these strikers were getting one dollar and thirty three cents per day he could not understand why they should strike, as men employed by him (Butler) were only getting $1.25. He learned the reason afterwards in talking with these men. They had not only to support their families at home but be upon the road and had to pay their own board most of the time. They said they would rather work for one dollar a day if they could live at home. Arbitration would have settled this trouble quickly and save $30,000,000 of property. The speaker had been an employer of laborers for nearly thirty years and he had never been in a strike in his life. He would any time be glad of arbitration. I have somebody else sooner than himself to settle disputes. Many of his employes were his old friends.

He then proceeded to give the reason why he could no longer sustain the democratic party. It was because it had not proved itself friendly to laboring men. He had asked the democratic convention to put a plank in its platform declaring the rights of labor to be organized for its own protection and it refused. He then tried it with the proposition that labor has a right to its just share of profits. This was also refused. He then asked that the United States government establish schools for working men's children. That was also refused. The convention would not agree to foster and cherish American labor. The republican party claimed to be the workingman's friend and yet had resorted to a trick in this state to keep him from voting by requiring that he should register last January. Butler closed by counselling working men to stand together and work for the election of laws in their interest.

DE YOUNG INTERVIEWED

He is Confident that Blaine will be Elected by a Large Majority

SAN FRANCISCO Aug 20—[Special]—Mr M. H. De Young proprietor of the Chronicle returned to-day from a trip to the eastern states and Europe. Referring to political matters he said: Blaine will be elected by an overwhelming majority and Cleveland will cut a very poor figure in the fight. He will be the worst beaten man that ever ran for the presidency. He is a man of no standing and has held no political position worth naming except the governorship of New York and that was only because there was trouble in the republican ranks owing to the French bogus credentials. On occasion of Cleveland's election was that there were 200,000 republicans who did not vote and when the democrats nominated him at the instigation of a little gang of scorcher independents they had forgotten that fact and supposed that he was a much stronger man than he really was. Why he never was even in the state legislature, he never was in the national congress and as I saw of the Sun said to me during a conversation I had with him he is great in his littleness. I said to Dana: What do you think of Cleveland? and he replied: He is great (Dana laughing as he said it) in his littleness. Dana says he don't like Blaine but he cannot stomach Cleveland and his following. He said Blaine was a great man although personally he did not like him but Cleveland didn't amount to anything. In London of course the politicians are all for Cleveland not because he is Cleveland but because they don't want Blaine. The people generally do not have anything to say about it but in the clubs, [illegible] clubs which are political in their nature, [illegible] Carleton Reform and Cobden clubs talk a very heated on the coming American election and they are all for Cleveland and since they fear the election of Blaine. It is thought in England that the election of Blaine would be a severe blow to England's interest on the continent of America. His support of the Monroe doctrine and his expressions about the Clayton Bulwer treaty were not relished in England.

MARSEILLES Aug 20—During the twenty four hours ending 8 P. M. there were twelve cholera deaths here.

WAR TALK

PARIS Aug 20—The French newspapers are very bellicose. The Republique Francaise says: Admiral Courbet has up to the present time been hampered by the negotiations that have constantly been pending. Once war is declared and a few hours bombardment and some redhot shot will suffice for France to get possession of Formosa and lay Foo Chow in ashes. The writer of the foregoing was fresh from a two hours interview with Prime Minister Ferry.

THE BALLOON PROBLEM SOLVED

PARIS Aug 20—Captain Renard inventor of the navigable balloon claims the problem of aerial navigation has been completely solved and is now only a question of time and money. He claims that he could insure a balloon postal system as easily as by railroad and could construct balloons each one of which could carry over 100 soldiers.

GERMANY

WORLD CONFERENCE OF THE Y. M. C. A.

BERLIN Aug 20—The tenth annual conference of the Young Men's Christian Association of the world convened this evening. The opening exercises lasted two hours after which Count Abersdorff president of the Berlin commission delivered an address of welcome. The count speaks English fluently and having visited America is conversant with the American associations' method of work for young men. Emperor William wrote to the conference expressing sympathy with its objects, declaring that his health prevented his meeting with the conference as a delegate, and invoking the divine blessing upon the convention. Count Bernstoff was re-elected president and W. H. Pogram of London secretary. The convention meets here on the invitation of the Berlin association and on the call of the central international committee whose headquarters is at Geneva. Every arrangement is made for the comfort of the delegates and for the sessions of the convention.

THE GERMAN FLAG HOISTED

BERLIN Aug 20—Dr Nacaligich special German commissioner who is passing south along the west coast of Africa to Angra Piquena on a German man-of-war has hoisted the German flag over territory south of Lagos which belongs to Hamburg merchants named Woerman. These merchants had concluded treaties with inland chiefs who ceded to them all their sovereign rights.

SPIRIT OF UNFRIENDLINESS

BERLIN August 20.—The North German Gazette holds that the British government is responsible for attempts to hamper and seal up the German colony at Angra Pequena and says it displays a spirit of mean unfriendliness toward friendly nations.

SPAIN

CUBA TO BE DISPOSED OF

NEW YORK Aug 20—[Special]—The Times Madrid dispatch says: I have just learned from an unquestionable authority that the foreign office has dispensed with the services of Sydney Webster. This is most astonishing news. The polite reason assigned was that economical Spain could not afford to pay $12,000 a year even for the valuable services of Webster. Unquestionably however the true reason is the abandonment of Cuba not however to the United States. It is no secret here that a commercial treaty, which is now being slowly negotiated means no relief to Cuba and no practical benefit. I have already pointed out the dominance of German influence at Madrid. Bismarck's diplomacy contemplates the establishment of a German protectorate in the West Indies in addition to the acquisition of colonial possessions on the Pacific.

LATEST FROM MEXICO

ST LOUIS, Aug 20—The latest special advices from the City of Mexico to the Globe Democrat say that the authorities deny any conspirators have been shot. General Olivarria is to be sent to Yucatan. Extreme secrecy is maintained by the authorities regarding the trial and disposition to be made by the prisoners. The Diario (official) publishes the contents in full of the revolutionary proclamation which was seized at Jourdan's house. There are many strong points in it against the existing administration. The conspiracy had not sufficient backing to warrant an insurrection and could not have succeeded in any event for lack of men and money. The business situation is duller than was ever known before here.

The Canned Fruit Trade

NEW YORK Aug 20—[Special]—Your reporter had an interview this morning with a gentleman in charge of the canned goods department of R. H. Thurber's establishment. When the reporter called four large bowls filled with California apricots, pears, plums and cherries were being tasted and sampled by the head of the department.

When shown a letter in the Bulletin headed California Fruit Canning and asked about the present condition of the business he said: The whole trouble with California canned goods and in fact with the eastern article just now is over production. The supply is much greater than the demand which of course causes a dullness in the trade. I don't think there are any cheap goods on the market now. They were only handled by small dealers anyway. Fruit growers in my opinion have combined to realize. Judge whether this is true or not when I tell you that some fruiterers have got as much as $1000 per acre for apricots. This is simply an enormous price. The depressed condition of the trade now is not due to bad canning; the evil exists to some extent all over the world and in all branches of industry. Some packers of standard brands are not as careful as they should be but there is little fault to find with the way in which extras are put up.

Sir Richard Temple on George

NEW YORK Aug 20—[Special]—Sir Richard Temple arrived here by the Servia to attend the meeting of the British association for the advancement of science at Montreal. He was asked by a reporter yesterday:

Do you think Henry George has many followers in England?

No I do not think that his doctrines have acquired any very strong hold on the minds of earnest thinkers, although it is an undoubted fact that the socialist element of the British population is [illegible] fascinated no doubt by the schemes with which he proposes to regenerate society. George however is not half as dangerous as a man as Hyndman whose followers are far more numerous than George's. The latter's are composed not only of workingmen and demagogues but in a large measure of thoughtful men who are charmed by the forcible style of his writings. Both George and Hyndman have [illegible] and agitate the one of [illegible] assail [illegible] Mr Hyndman who recently issued a very [illegible] reply to their [illegible] doctrines.

The Herald refers to the subject and to the arrival of a German ship at Philadelphia with a large quantity of rags. They should not be allowed to land, the Times says. A fatal disease resembling cholera prevails in two villages in Iowa and the vigilance of the health officer should not be relaxed for a long time to come.

The Herald says: It is not impossible that cholera should appear in Iowa. We know that cholera brought here first developed in the [illegible] in 1854 [illegible] report [illegible] outbreak of dysentery of an unusually severe type.

PLEURO PNEUMONIA

Several Herds of Jersey Cattle in Illinois Infected with the Disease

CHICAGO Aug 20—The Breeders' Gazette will publish the following to morrow: At last the unwelcome truth is forced upon us that contagious pleuro-pneumonia has found a lodgment in the prairie of Illinois. Evidence of its baleful presence in not less than five Jersey herds in this state is overwhelming and fears are expressed that a great infection has only dawned upon us. Fears were set on foot some two or three weeks ago by the bureau of animal industry and facts now leave no reason to doubt the unwelcome fact. The nature of the trouble was first suspected by Dr Trunbower of Sterling who was in the employment of the agricultural department. A Jersey cow belonging to Mr Keefe of Sterling recently purchased by him sickened and died under such circumstances as to lead to suspicion. Her lungs were taken out and sent to Dr Salmon chief of the bureau at Washington. An examination satisfied him that a thorough investigation of the case was warranted and he instructed his subordinate to carefully inquire into its history. It was soon learned that the cow came from a herd of M. G. Clarke of Geneva Ill and that there had been other and serious trouble there. He had sold two cows that went into the herd of John Boyd of Elmhurst and which soon thereafter had sickened and one of them had died.

DR SALMON INVESTIGATES

Other and more serious results followed and Dr Salmon came in person a few days ago to investigate the case. In company with Mr Henders of the Gazette he visited Mr Boyd's herd where the remaining living cow was purchased from Mr Clark and found to be suffering from what appeared to be pleuro-pneumonia in a chronic form. Another one of Mr Boyd's cows presented an acute case of the same disease of only about ten days duration. Dr Salmon was slow however to declare the contagious nature of the disease but subsequent investigation and the further fact that two more animals in the same herd were attacked with similar symptoms so confirmed him in his diagnosis that he determined [illegible] the two cows which were first attacked on Mr Boyd's place.

[illegible]

Mr Clarke [illegible] admitted six deaths in his [illegible] herd since last April although he claims [illegible] of those died of old age. These with two sold and two taken to Elmhurst made nine fatal cases in one herd.

UNDOUBTEDLY PLEURO-PNEUMONIA

In the meantime disease appeared in two herds in another part of the state and Drs Salmon, Pearson and Ramage made a post mortem examination that revealed the cases to be the genuine lung plague. The disease appears to have run its course in the herd of Mr Clarke, but in the meantime sales had been made to various parties, one lot going to Cynthiana and from which nothing has been heard.

The article claims that investigation shows that an auction sale of Jerseys, at Virginia, Cass county Illinois in February last, was the distributing point of the infection in this state. Animals from the sale were taken to Nebraska, Missouri, Iowa and Kentucky and to various other herds in this state. All the available resources of the department of agriculture are being energetically used to trace up, determine and isolate the infected herds. Mr Boyd and others whose names are not mentioned have none [illegible] for months past and there is no danger of the disease spreading further from their herds. So far as known [illegible] to Jersey herds.

AN ORDER ISSUED

In view of these developments the following order has been issued:

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE,
WASHINGTON August 20 1884

To the Cattle Owners of the [illegible]: Owing to the existence of disease supposed to be pleuro-pneumonia in several of the Jersey herds in [illegible] by request all owners of herds of Jersey cattle in the United States into which new cattle have been introduced since January 1st to Sept 1 [illegible]. The disease is to have been introduced by animals sold at Virginia, Cass county Illinois in February 1884 [illegible] these animals were widely distributed through the western states. It is hoped therefore that persons owning cattle tracing to this sale and all others having cattle affected with disease of the lungs will at once communicate with Dr D. E. Salmon chief of the bureau of animal industry care of the Breeders' Gazette Chicago and clearly state the condition of their herds and the symptoms of the disease. The attention of owners of cattle and railroads and other transportation companies is called to section 7 of the act establishing a bureau of animal industry which makes it a misdemeanor punishable by fine of not less than $100 and not more than $5000 or by imprisonment of not more than one year or both for shipping cattle with any contagious or infectious disease known as pleuro-pneumonia from one state or territory into another. The cordial co-operation of state authorities and of all persons interested in the welfare of our cattle industries is earnestly desired in order to avert the danger which now menaces the herds of the country.

THE AUSTRIAN FLAG

Count William Lippe Wissenfield says the Pittsburg Affair was Ridiculous

WASHINGTON Aug 19—[Special]—Count William Lippe-Wissenfield charge d'affaires of the Austro-Hungarian government when seen to-day by your correspondent had heard nothing of the pulling down of the flag raised by the Austrian consul at Pittsburg yesterday. Your correspondent showed him a dispatch from Pittsburg which he read and then said that in the absence of any official information he had nothing to say. In answer to an inquiry as to whether or not there was any provision in the convention between Austria and the United States giving consuls the liberty to place flags over their residences he said he had not committed the convention to memory and he could not say. He said the action of the Pittsburg chief of police was ridiculous. The flag he said did not hurt anybody and even if there were no laws in the convention giving the consul authority to raise a flag over his residence it was very impolite to compel a man to move a coat of arms or a flag raised in honor of the birthday of his emperor. It is ridiculous. If it were the populace who tore it down it would be a different matter but the police a branch of the government why they could not do a more impolite act [illegible] if they would interfere with a man [illegible] in honor of his father or a birthday. But I can not say anything until I have official information on the subject.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY DAVIS

Assistant Secretary of State Davis said there is a clause in a treaty giving consuls the right to raise national flags over their residences. He showed your correspondent the clause which reads on this matter. It reads that all consuls and vice consuls shall have the right to place their nation's flag over residences or [illegible] or any of their vessels. In regard to the jurisdiction of the municipal court of Pittsburg, Davis said that was a question of law with which the department had nothing to do. Consuls he said not being diplomatic officers were not accorded personal immunities granted diplomatic representatives of foreign governments.

RAILROAD NOTES

OAKES INTERVIEWED

NEW YORK Aug 20—[Special]—Special from St Paul: [illegible] day's dispatches St Paul having declared that Oakes general manager of the Northern Pacific is to [illegible] of the Union Pacific and that Colonel Lamberton is accompanying him to resume his old position with the Kansas Pacific. When asked last night about the truth of the report from Kansas City that he would go over to the [illegible] Pacific Oakes said: There is no foundation whatever for the report. The object of the Denver gathering was to make arrangements for a meeting of rail managers at Saratoga in September. The Kansas and Pacific railway company intimated that it will give a ninety days notice of the severance of its with Irawal from the transcontinental pool. A dispatch at hand connection with lawsuit of the Atchison Topeka & Santa Fe road has already given the required ninety days notice of withdrawal. The Northern Pacific, Union Pacific and other transcontinental [illegible] the continuance of the pool at the Denver meeting methods to secure such continuance were discussed.

Oakes said further that no other business of any kind which can be given to the public was transacted at Denver.

CRIMINAL CALENDAR

GIRL BRUTALLY MURDERED

PHILADELPHIA Aug 20—[Special]—The Press gives particulars of the brutal murder of Ella Watson a 16-year old daughter of a well to do farmer at Yorktown Pa Monday afternoon. The girl went to the village store to sell poultry and started for home. She was seen by a farmer in the evening but did not reach home and her parents became alarmed and search was made and yesterday morning her body was found in a thicket near the road she was traveling. She had been beaten and choked to death. The forehead showed an ugly wound. The news spread throughout the region, and caused great excitement and a sheriff's posse with a large party of neighbors scoured the country. Suspicion fastened upon a negro who was instantly arrested and who stoutly denied the crime. Later in the day Thomas Lumey a tramp farm hand was arrested. The coroner's inquest showed that death had been caused by a blow from a club which crushed in the skull and also by an attempt to outrage the girl.

SEARCHING FOR A BAD MAN

VIENNA Ill Aug 20—About 100 men were, at last accounts with guns and pistols still in pursuit of David Avery the man who on Monday burned his wheat stacks to prevent a levy by the constable and then went gunning for his neighbors burning their stacks also. The pursuers think he can not escape. The settlement is greatly excited. Last night some one burned Avery's house and barns. The premises were unoccupied as the members of his family are under arrest. The supposition is that Avery did it himself.

GALVESTON Aug 20—Day before yesterday a murderous assault and outrage was committed on Mrs Dunnman wife of a dairyman residing three miles down the island. ENGLAND

THE GREELY EXPEDITION

LONDON Aug 20—Clements R. Markham secretary of the Royal Geographical Society who served in the Arctic expedition of 1851 in search of Sir John Franklin has written a letter saying the accusation of murder and cannibalism against the Greely party is a disgrace to American journals. Decency would have suggested silence until Greely had submitted his report to the government. Markham, continuing says: The American navy department should have controlled and been responsible for the expedition. The party should never have been left without a depot ship, wintering within accessible distance of them. The difficulty of navigating the channels north of Smith's sound was ignored and precautions neglected to avoid a catastrophe for which there is no excuse. Lieutenant Greely's observatory work will form valuable supplements to the series of observations which were taken by the ship Discovery of 1875. The members of the Greely expedition are mistaken however, in stating that Cape Britannia was visible from Mt Lincoln, on the west side of Robertson channel. The real Cape Britannia is invisible from Mt Lincoln the most distant visible land being Cape Stewart and Mt Hooker. The point which Lockwood and Brainerd reached was Cape May not Cape Britannia.

IN WALL STREET

A Day of Sharp Advances and Declines Stock Quotations

NEW YORK Aug 20—Governments strong. Rail ways lower this afternoon. Stocks were buoyant and active during early dealings. Union Pacific was a feature and advanced on large business from 60¾ to 64¾. The rise was based on reports from Boston that the company and the Chicago Burlington and Quincy had arrived at a better understanding; rates had been restored throughout the entire line of the road and all differences with the Denver and Rio Grande and the Denver and Rio Grande Western companies had been adjusted. The improvement in other active stocks ranged from ¼ to 2¼.

In the afternoon Missouri Pacific was raided down and this weakened the entire market. At the same time it was reported from the west that the weather there was unfavorable for growing corn which led to selling for long account and prices declined ¾ to 2¾ per cent from the highest point of the day. Near the close there was a rally of ¼ to ½ the latter Union Pacific. The market closed steady.

Petroleum is steady at 79¾.

FROM THE "POST"

NEW YORK Aug 20—[Special]—Post's financial article: It is pretty well understood that the advances in stocks in the last few days which range from 3 to 11 per cent have been mainly the result of clique manipulation. The bull cliques have been reinforced to some extent by those who had heretofore been bears and by an increased disposition to speculate manifested in other cities especially Chicago on the part of outsiders. Still there is great distrust of the cliques, it being believed that they will at any time try to get rid of a part of their load though they will be compelled to sustain prices a long time and through many fluctuations. It is also realized that the effect of good crops has now to a considerable extent been discounted by the advance in prices of the last week of June which ranges from 3 to 31 points many cheap stocks having doubled their prices in that time.

EVADING THE WHISKY TAX

Pittsburg Distillers Shipping Whiskey to Europe for Storage

Pittsburg Dispatch

Over five thousand barrels of whisky have been shipped to Europe within the past three months for storage by Pittsburg distillers and it is expected that during the fall and winter enough more will follow to swell the aggregate to ten thousand barrels. The distillers are doing this to escape paying the tax which they will be compelled to pay soon owing to the refusal of congress to extend the time of whisky in bond. The three year limit is now expiring and the time has come when the owners of the stocks must either get it out of the country or pay the revenue tax which amounts to about $9600 per 100 barrels. W. J. Friday a prominent distiller in speaking of these shipments said:

By sending our whisky to Europe for storage we are practically obtaining an unlimited bonded period. The only difference is that this country loses the money that would otherwise be paid for storage. To show you the difference: It costs to $2 to send a barrel of whisky from Pittsburg to Bremen store it for two years insure it and land it in New York again, whereas to keep it here and carry it for years would cost $20. It would take $9,600 to pay the tax on 100 barrels of 1881 whisky. If we send it away we have the use of the money it costs, except $80 for freight to Bremen and there is no other expense but storage and insurance. The demand for whisky is bound to improve because there was only a one-half crop in 1882, a one third crop in 1883 and in 1884 the crop will not be more than one fifth of the average. A man would be a fool under these circumstances, who would keep his stock in this country.

EDGE OF LIFE AMUSING

Has George proposed yet Emily? No ma, but he did the next thing to it last evening. What did he do? He asked me if I thought paregoric injurious to teething children.

There are all sorts of clocks but a new invention is badly needed. It is one that instead of striking at 11 P. M. will pick up a dilatory lover and fire him out of the front door. A clock of this description would make a fortune for the inventor as there are probably a million of American fathers who would buy one.—Philadelphia Chronicle Herald

Oh yes said a young lady of one of the capital cities, we used to sing the Moody hymns a great deal when we were staying at my aunt's in the country. I like the one called Hold the Fort. They used to sing it very spiritedly there in the Sunday school.

In Abyssinia every man fears and suspects his neighbor and dreads the king. His name is literally one to conjure by. To swear or command in the name of Johannes is unanswerable and final. One continually hears the following oaths: By the backbone of John! By the God of John! or By the God of the horse of John!

A clergyman taught an old man in his parish to read. After his lessons were finished he was not able to call for some time, and when he did only found the wife at home. How is John? said he. How does he get on with his reading? Oh nicely sir. Ah! I suppose he'll read his bible very comfortably [illegible] Oh, he was out [illegible] chapters long ago.

Here's More Trouble.

[Buffalo Commercial Aug 13

Our neighbor the Courier finds it convenient to omit from Mr Benjamin Folsom's letter indignantly protesting against the attempt to drag his dead cousin's name into the Cleveland scandal, the following significant sentence:

I denounce as infamous the attempt to father upon my cousin Oscar Folsom, the illegitimate offspring of Maria Halpin.

This is pretty strong evidence that Cleveland's claim that in fathering the Halpin child he generously assumed a responsibility that was not his to shield a married friend, is groundless and cowardly.

Doctors are getting more and more into the habit of prescribing proprietary medicines in their practice, especially that known as Hunt's (Kidney and Liver) Remedy for diseases of the kidney, liver and bladder. PACIFIC COAST.

California in Arms Against Ex-Governor Gibbs' Speech.

ARRIVAL OF ALASKA'S GOVERNOR, KINKEAD

The Usual Budget of Items from San Francisco—A Boy Mangled by a Torpedo—Big Reward for a Murderer

A Reply to Gibbs' Speech.

SAN FRANCISCO Aug 20—[Special]—A dispatch from New York quoting from a speech made by ex-Governor Gibbs before a temperance meeting was published in this city yesterday and each of the papers have had a sarcastic fling at the governor. The Report of last evening after indulging in observations headed A Fanatic at Large says: A temperance fanatic by the name of ex-Governor Gibbs in a temperance speech before a New York audience said that in the making of California wines the grapes are trodden by the dirty feet of Indians. It is charitable to suppose that ex Governor Gibbs has been misinformed and that he did not want to utter such a gross libel on our vineyards. The wine press is in universal use in California, the only exception being a few native Californians and Italians who make a little claret every year for their own use and cling to the primitive custom of stamping out the juice of the grapes, because it does not pay them to go to the expense of purchasing a press. It is a well-known fact, however, that a very large percentage of foreign wines, French, Italian and Spanish, undergoes the process of treading for the extraction of the grape juice, but it is claimed how ever that the most extreme cleanliness is enforced.

[Special]—J. H. Drummond a Sonoma wine-grower, publishes a card in the Bulletin charging that ex Governor Gibbs' tirade is a willful and malicious falsehood and was certainly uttered with the knowledge that it was untrue. He says, in conclusion: I would respectfully suggest that our viticultural commission send a special telegram to New York papers indignantly repudiating this gross calumny on California wine making.

Not Entitled to Return

SAN FRANCISCO Aug 20—Judge Hoffman of the United States district court to-day rendered a decision in the habeas corpus case of Shong Toon who left this state two months after the Chinese restriction act of May 6 1882 went into operation and who failed to obtain a return certificate, alleging that the crowd in waiting at the custom house was so great that he was unable to procure a certificate before the office closed for the day. He alleges that he then had to choose between leaving without a certificate or losing his passage money and he chose the former course. The court held that he is not entitled to re-enter the United States as the failure to obtain the certificate which he might have obtained by applying at a seasonable time cannot be accepted as evidence to allow him to re-enter this country. To accept such excuse would be in conflict with the amended Chinese act which provides that Chinese laborers whose coming to the United States is not suspended by the act are clearly divided into two classes: First those who were here at the date of the treaty or have come before June 6 1882 and second those who having departed after passage shall produce the evidence in the act required to return certificates.

Civil Service Examination

SAN FRANCISCO Aug 20—[Special]—Next Saturday there will be an examination under the civil service rules of applicants to positions in the custom house. There will be one hundred and fifty applicants. It is among the curiosities of these examinations that graduates of public schools stand highest and a greater proportion pass examinations than those of colleges or academies. Branches in which examinations are held are simple penmanship orthography and arithmetic and it is on account of the simplicity of the branches that the common school pupil carries off the honors for he usually devotes himself to studies that will be of more value in business life. Were higher branches made the subject of examination the tables would be turned but the officials doubt if they would obtain so efficient employes. There are no vacancies at present either in the postoffice or custom house. When one occurs it is filled from the grade below and there is a raise all along the line leaving a vacancy in the lowest grade to be filled from the list of those who obtained the highest percentages in examination.

Arrival of Governor Kinkead

[Special]—Governor John H. Kinkead of Alaska arrived in this city to-day from the east where he has been visiting prior to his departure for the north. He leaves for Alaska at the end of this week or the beginning of next. He speaks hopefully of the future of that territory. He thinks that it has a greater future before it than is generally supposed, and anticipates a large increase in the population as soon as the government is properly under way. The governor has been spending some time at Washington and there met number us politicians and others from different states. He says the outlook for the republican party is brighter than it has ever been. He says that Blaine will certainly carry New York state by a very large majority and thinks the democrats made a great mistake in nominating a man like Cleveland whose record is not good and whose only recommendation is his security.

Suicide

Alphonse Gifard a Frenchman oyster peddler was found this afternoon hanging dead in his room at 523 Dupont street. Apparently he had first suspended himself by a rope and finding it too long to strangle him speedily had drawn a knife and stabbed himself through the heart. He had not been seen since Sunday last and the landlady became anxious and had the door broken in with the above result. The cause was despondency over financial matters.

Portland Criticised

[Special]—The Post has the following about Portland: At Portland Oregon when the local authorities dig up a loathsome leper in the Chinese quarters they send him to the county hospital. This is a peculiar way of preventing the spread of an infectious disease but it would cost money to build and maintain a pest house and therefore patients in the county hospital at Portland are exposed to a disease worse than they are suffering from.

Better Telegraph Service.

[Special]—For the first time in two years telegraph business between this city and the north is now transmitted without delay. All through eastern business now goes via the Northern Pacific wire and this takes a great strain from the Portland and San Francisco wires, which for many months have been badly overburdened. The telegraph manager here promises that there shall be no more trouble.

Steamer News.

[Special]—When the State of California returns from Portland she will be put in the dry dock and thoroughly overhauled. She will be furnished with new boilers and her furnishings will be brightened up and replaced with new. It is expected that she will be out of commission three months and during that time her place on the Portland route will be supplied by the George W. Elder.

A Significant Speech

The Chinese Commission Denounced.

OTTAWA, Ont Aug. 20—[Special]—The British Columbians are already denouncing the Chinese commission appointed by the Dominion government. Although it has been sitting at Victoria but a short time, sufficient is known to justify the assertion that it is merely a ruse to pacify the people of the province for a time and nothing will come of it. Sir John MacDonald is anxious to have the western section of the Canadian Pacific built and is indisposed to bring on legislation to prevent the employment of Chinese. It is thought the British Columbians will petition the British government to prohibit the influx of such an undesirable class of settlers or allow them to sever their connection with the Dominion and once more become a crown colony.

I am a practicing physician, residing permanently in this place. In the year 1843, when a resident of the State of Missouri, I became acquainted with the superior virtues of Dr. C. I do hereby certify to the public, that a child of mine, four years old, being troubled with worms, I was induced to purchase a bottle of Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge, prepared by Fleming Bros. of Pittsburgh, Pa., which I administered, and the result was, I brought away an immense number of worms in bunches and strings, many had the appearance of being cut to pieces. My child is now enjoying most excellent health. I take pleasure in recommending it to both young and old, as one of the best medicines I ever used.

MR. CLEVELAND'S LETTER

It is no criticism of Mr Cleveland's letter to say that it is short, for men have been known to say a great deal in small space. But it is a proper criticism to say that the letter is evasive and weak. It was written under the necessity of producing something that would stand for a letter of acceptance and yet with a studied effort to avoid saying anything that could be tortured into an expression of opinion. So he contents himself with saying that he has carefully considered the platform adopted by the convention that nominated him and cordially approves the same. This is not surprising since he has cordially approved every democratic platform adopted since he became a voter including the copperhead platforms of the war period. In the late convention one faction contended for tariff reduction, the other for extreme protection. They compromised by getting up a see saw tariff plank, one end for free trade and the other for protection. The free traders of the convention went home declaring that it meant a great victory for the free trade principle, and the protectionists went home proclaiming it an equally great victory over the pestilent heresy of free trade. Mr Cleveland doesn't make special mention of the tariff question, but says in substance that he fully agrees both with the free traders and protectionists. And this is the outcome of that valorous effort put forth by the party through its representatives in congress which was to make tariff reduction and revenue reform the great questions of the time.

The letter in effect recognizes the fact that the workingmen are inclined to vote against the democratic candidates. This appears from the circumstance that much of the letter is devoted to an effort to conciliate them. It is an appeal to them by Mr Cleveland not to vote against him, as they are manifestly disposed to do. Beyond this, the only point in the letter is an attempt to say something on the civil service question which shall please the bolting republicans. With this in view it is said that the selection and retention of subordinates in government employment should depend on their ascertained fitness and the value of their work and they should neither be expected nor allowed to do questionable party service." A good sentiment, and yet can any one suppose that if Mr Cleveland were elected he would be able to adhere to it? His hungry brethren would get up a pressure for office that he could not possibly resist. They demand and will expect a "clean sweep," nor would they vote for Mr Cleveland did they not believe his utterance on the subject a mere sham. If it was true in June last, as Mr George William Curtis said it was, that the democratic party was trying to sneak back into power as a conspiracy for spoils," it would seem improbable that the character of the party could have changed in the few weeks since then. Should Mr Cleveland be elected his party will control this little matter, and he will merely be its agent, factor and obedient servant. It will be said no doubt that it is no great matter if all republicans do go out and democrats come in. Perhaps it will not, but at least let us have an end of the hypocritical pretence that under democratic rule employment in the public service will depend on ascertained fitness, and not on devotion to party.

H. W. S.

A MONOPOLIST CANDIDATE

Mr Simon Sterne, a well-known lawyer in New York city who was the counsel for the New York Chamber of Commerce and the Board of Trade and Transportation in conducting the Hepburn investigation and drafted the bill for the appointment of the present railroad commission of New York and made the arguments before the railroad committees of the state during the past ten years and has assisted greatly in carrying on the warfare against railroad and other monopolists says that General Butler became prominent as an anti monopolist only when that movement began to be popular. He came out of the war upon the salary of a brigadier a rich man, and has largely increased his wealth during his service in congress by methods which are antagonistic to the anti monopoly party. He is now engaged in several monopolies and as Mr Andrew Carnegie remarked, "he seems violently opposed to all monopolies in which he is not directly interested." Among them is the Washington Market Company, which is not only a monopoly, but is frequently characterized as a swindling monopoly. General Butler is a large stockholder and the counsel of the company besides. The company obtained valuable franchises from congress, and for them contracted to pay a certain sum yearly into the treasury for the District of Columbia. For a while the money was paid but the Market company soon ceased to pay its annual debt to the district and the courts have been for years trying to make it either pay what it owes or give up its charter which is monopolistic to the last degree. General Butler has appeared for the market company, and has succeeded in warding off either the fulfillment or the abandonment of its charter. The citizens' desire is to break up the monopoly altogether but as an act of congress is necessary to do so and as the difficulties in the way of getting a bill through both houses for the benefit of the district of Columbia are simply tremendous, General Butler and his fellow stockholders continue to defy the protest of the citizens. General Butler is now running for president as his friends say not with the expectation of being elected, but to gain a position which will make him a successful candidate in 1888. The result of his canvass ought to be to expose his selfishness and insincerity so fully that that will be impossible.

The republican convention in Michigan last week made an effort to win back the farmers and workingmen generally, together with the prohibitionists, to the support of the grand old party, but it was not wholly successful. The granger's candidate, who had been confidently expected to receive the nomination for governor was defeated, and his supporters were not pacified by his nomination to the second place on the ticket. The prohibitionists have better reason to be satisfied with the recognition accorded to them. One plank of the platform advocates the submission of the question of their method of temperance reform to a popular vote. If the granger's candidate had consented to stand as a candidate for lieutenant governor the republicans would have great reason to be satisfied with the result of the convention, though their position is still a strong one. Garfield's plurality in the state was 53,000, and his majority over Hancock and Weaver about 20 000.

Says the Albany Evening Journal: "If the democrats of New York and King's counties do not surpass last year's majority of 47,000 there will be no question of the ability of the republicans to carry the empire state." It is the opinion of not a few practical observers that the democratic majority this year in New York and Brooklyn will not amount to one-third of 47 000. Butler it is believed, will take half the democratic vote, while Blaine will get as large a part of it as the republican vote that will go to Cleveland.

Mr Hendricks' letter of acceptance is much briefer even than that of Mr Cleveland. In making it brief he has showed his good sense. Had he made it long he would have been obliged to shuffle and dodge in order to avoid saying anything that would commit him or his party. He simply wants the office of vice president, and simply says so.

The New Jersey legislature last winter passed a law providing for the taxation of corporations, which is working admirably. The receipts under this law will more than pay the expenses of the state, so that no state tax is now imposed on the people.

FALSE SENTIMENT.

It is the opinion of the nearest witness of the tragedy, the lady who had called to take Mrs Collison out to ride, that the Rev Mr Collison of Chicago intended to kill his oldest son as well as his wife and himself. This lady says that Mrs Collison was reluctant to go and seemed afraid to leave her husband with the children. Apprehending some danger she had telegraphed her brother to come and see her and he arrived just after the awful deed had been committed. Such a tragedy as this ought to have some effect besides horrifying the readers of newspapers and agonizing those more directly affected by it. If it were an exceptional case there would be less propriety in asking: What does it principally teach? We now recall three similar tragedies but have occurred within a half a dozen years in Vermont. In one case a man who had lost his reason on account of a spinal difficulty and whose insanity was pronounced [illegible] but who was "considered safe although of an ugly temper" killed his mother, his sister and stepfather and then hanged himself. [illegible] so safe that the family [illegible] a stranger under the roof, the teacher of the district school, who escaped death by [illegible] at the school house when the lunatic slaughtered every person within his reach. Exactly as another lunatic who lived only two miles away had killed his father and mother four years before. In another instance a father who had been known by the neighbors and members of his family for some time to show signs of ferocious insanity was not placed under surveillance or sent to an asylum until after he had killed five of his children.

It is said to be a very delicate matter to place such persons, who have excited the alarm of their families or neighbors under surveillance or commit them to the asylum and that the right of an individual to his personal liberty must not be infringed upon without sufficient reason. Mme Roland said a great many crimes have been committed in the name of liberty, before she bowed her head to the guillotine and a great many crimes have been committed in the name of false sentiment. In some of the cases referred to if not in all them the responsibility for their occurrence rests not upon the insane agent so much as upon those who from feelings of delicacy refrained to take the proper precautions and upon the false sentiment which considers it a meritorious act to sacrifice the peace and happiness of a whole family for the sake of one of its members. It may seem to be a filial duty for people to turn their houses into private lunatic asylums and to keep the blind, the mute, the idiot or the lunatic child within the walls of the parental home but in many instances it is really a pitiless cruelty to do so, a cruelty excusable only on the ground of ignorance. The blind and the mute who have been sent to asylums for instruction at the public expense are a million fold better off than those who have been kept lovingly at home. And lunatic asylums at their worst are gardens of Eden compared with many of the dens which a false sentiment has made for insane kinsmen. A murder like those in Vermont to which we have referred is not much worse humanly speaking than the lingering torture and prolonged agony of the insane and the reflex influence upon the homes in which they are confined. When a person mentally or physically deficient is deprived by the members of his family of the palliatives which the state offers him he is wickedly robbed and although those who rob him may suffer continually from the consequence of their act they deserve no pity whatever be its results and every one who encourages them in their conduct shares their guilt and is partly responsible for the consequent results. Whenever any member of a family or any of its acquaintances or friends has reason to suspect that any other member has become or is becoming dangerously insane no time should be lost in calling a physician and if the physician finds ground for such apprehensions the diseased person should be at once put under such watch and care that no harm could befall. Such a course as this is the only true kindness and it is the course which the afflicted one would wish to have pursued if he could utter his real sentiment. The story of Charles and Mary Lamb has many aspects of beauty. But after Mary had taken her mother's life Charles lived in almost constant peril of his own and the sacrifice which he made to prevent the awful darkness from falling again over her mind was one that does not deserve imitation, filially beautiful though it may seem.

A CHILL FROM AVAILABILITY

In all our political contests of recent years there has been such an element of doubt as to give much encouragement to democratic hopes. In 1872 Greeley at first looked formidable because there was a decided break among the old republican leaders. In 1876 the country was still in depressed financial and industrial condition that followed the collapse of 1873, and there was a restless desire for change. The democratic party too was led by its ablest and most crafty chieftain Samuel J Tilden. Everything from beginning seemed joyful to the democracy and till a day after the election enthusiasm knew no subsidence. In 1880 the democratic party put up a gallant soldier with a record without spot or blemish. The republican forces came away from the memorable contest at Chicago bitter in spirit and with brows lowering with disappointment. Again up went democratic hopes and enthusiasm only to be dashed to earth long before the chilly days of November. In all these campaigns the democrats had the hurrah to begin with and lost. This time they do not have this advantage. There seems to be a chill in the democratic camp. Delegates returned from Chicago without a smile of satisfaction or a shout of triumph. Ever since enthusiasm has been running low. We do not see flying the banners of campaign clubs. The work that is being done is mechanical. The tone of the democratic press is not boastful but often listless, sometimes hopeless. It speaks of Cleveland in his personal or private capacity in an apologetic whisper and of his public record in a defensive argumentative way—not with the old time hilarity. A democrat is nothing unless enthusiastic and now for once he enters a campaign with no inspiration to throw his willing cap in the air. Doubt and uncertainty shroud the democratic cause.

Of reasons for this posture of affairs there are many. Primarily they appear to grow out of the fact that all the old and well approved democratic leaders were set aside for a man of very moderate abilities whose chief commendation was the favor with which he was supposed to be regarded by a small body of independents and republican malcontents. Mr Cleveland is not a representative man in any sense, and the party is half ashamed of him as a leader. It is this that gives [illegible] the possibility of a heavy following. A large part of Tammany hall is in open rebellion and the remainder of it is lukewarm, the straddle on the tariff chills the protection wing of the party, the workingmen are dissatisfied, and the old bed rock element of the party is sulking more or less because the bolting republican journals dictated the nomination of Cleveland as they did that of Greeley in 1872. Men do not like to see so many sacrifices made to the notion of mere availability. Suppose Thurman had been nominated instead of Cleveland. Does any one imagine they would not now be a united and aggressive democratic party?

At the opening of a savings bank in the city of Newark, New Jersey a few days ago, the trustees called upon a clergyman to pray that they might be faithful to their trust. After the prayer the books were opened and $40 000 were deposited in the bank. Human nature is weak and needs the help of divine grace, but if a man does not feel confident that he can keep from stealing the small savings of widows and orphans and other poor people entrusted to his care without special public prayer for him, his qualifications for the position of trustee may well be doubted. Such men have too often imposed upon the confidence of the public by their parade of piety. An eminent citizen of Highland Mill, New York, a pillar of the Methodist church and the Sunday schools' best friend has just departed for regions unknown leaving behind from $100 000 to $150 000 of bad debts, most of which are represented by bogus paper. His eminence as a citizen and churchman enabled him to carry on for several years a [illegible] (swindling) [illegible] banks in his neighborhood by inducing them to [illegible] money on notes which now turn out to be nearly all bogus. The village will miss him, the report says, for which [illegible] for the Sunday school children was [illegible] book invariably [illegible] and when the village wanted a band he put down $800 to buy the instruments and the other parts of the outfit.

The tariff is to be tested as a [illegible] issue [illegible]. The sugar growers [illegible] which in the New Orleans [illegible] is to be prevailed upon [illegible] on [illegible] of their own which shall be [illegible] democratic but sugar. If this ticket wins the sugar [illegible] voters are to vote for Mr Blaine because of his sympathy with that struggling industry. [illegible] has the scheme in charge and is said to be working it with great adroitness and assiduity.

The Independent (New York) sent a reporter [illegible] Twining to Buffalo to find material for whitewashing Mr Cleveland so that the truly good Independent could continue to support him. Rev Twining had to admit the Halpin irregularity but found that every attempt to trace the other reports led back to the gossip of the saloons and brothels. Where should it lead? Did the reverend brother expect to find the evidence in the Sunday schools and bible societies?

POLITICAL DRIFT

The Boston Herald and Indianapolis Sentinel are in the same box for life and the Chicago Times is shaking in its boots as coming events cast their shadows before.

Butler is an astonishing soldier, sailor, poet, pedestrian and bunion [illegible] bouquet and law hammer, coat tail fancy man but politically he is a complete corkscrew, twisting about without regard to consequences.—Hartford Times

The Catholic Herald says that free trade means the opening up of a new country of 55 000 000 to the ravages of England and that accounts for the landslide of American Irishmen into the republican ranks.

Every democrat who pronounces for Blaine is said to control only his own vote. Every republican who goes over to Cleveland has a large and influential following. That's the way, says the Norristown Herald, the democratic papers all put it.

If Mr Blaine is elected president he will be the first for some years who was not a lawyer. He will also represent the candidate who is peculiarly the idol of a section in which he never lived—the west or as the New York Herald has termed it the [illegible] west, and which the people of the west have adopted as the campaign watchword.

The Tribune almanac gives the total vote at the last presidential election as 9,212,947. A writer in the American calculates upon this basis that the presidential vote this year will be in the neighborhood of 10 400 000. The population of the United States on the first of next November is estimated at 5[illegible] 312 877 of which a little over 1 000,000 is in the territories.

The Catholic Union and Times, Buffalo, says Harper's Weekly and Puck show they are advancing the [illegible] by outrageous caricatures of the Irish. [illegible]

[illegible]

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

[illegible]

Albany Express: It is said that Mr Dorsheimer has completed a life of Grover Cleveland. It is [illegible] harmony that Mr Harper [illegible] have been satisfactorily arranged otherwise there might be another independent bolt and Editor Curtis be compelled to run another candidate. [illegible]

Chicago Citizen (Irish American): As regards the English press [illegible] Mr Cleveland [illegible] democratic success will open to them the markets of the United States. [illegible]

Murat Halstead in Cincinnati Commercial Gazette: The true and only way [illegible] States [illegible] Massachusetts. It will be remembered [illegible] the presidency [illegible] city of New York.

Kansas City Journal: [illegible] Cleveland [illegible] The feud [illegible] stand [illegible] New York than Cleveland.

Cincinnati Commercial: The republican prospects in [illegible] are all that could be desired. The ticket is a popular one. Almost everywhere great activity has been exhibited but so far and for the most part this has been largely superficial. It would not be policy to flood the state with ordinary speakers—with men anxious to advertise themselves at the expense of the party. The services of such will no doubt be abundantly tendered. They should in all cases be respectfully declined. The foremost men in the party—men to whom the people look with confidence for instruction and whose words will be weighty should be the foremost on the stump in Ohio.

Refusing to Join the Bolters

Edward Everett Hale in The Independent

The situation, as I understand it is this. From 1801 to 1861 the national administration was a oligarchy in the hands of a compact southern oligarchy which used the machinery of administration for its own purposes, and greatly to the injury of the nation. From 1861 to this time it has been in the hands of the Northern states. In this period have been made the great advances in the national history and for the first time there has been a cordial effort to make the government represent the principles on which the nation is founded.

It now seems possible for the solid southern oligarchy by a combination with the voters of the worst wards of the city of New York to regain the power they lost in 1861.

ASKING BETTER HOSPITAL FACILITIES.

The following petition signed by sixty leading physicians and prominent citizens was read and referred to the committee on health and police:

To the Hon. Mayor and common council of the city of Portland—Gentlemen: The undersigned your petitioners would respectfully represent that they are residents and taxpayers of the city of Portland and as such interested in the material welfare and good and efficient government of the same, and that whereas the grand jury of Multnomah county has recently made an official and personal examination into the hospital facilities in our midst and report the necessity for better and more adequate accommodation for the sick among our poor and

Whereas, The question of the public health is one of vital and rapidly increasing importance to our citizens and one in which the city of Portland should feel it incumbent as a public and municipal corporation to take active and vigorous steps to properly provide for and

Whereas, In our opinion and in the opinion of the grand jury after investigating the subject a better, more efficient and more economical plan than that now in vogue for the care and treatment of the indigent sick and city patients could be adopted.

Therefore, We earnestly request that your honorable body take immediate action in the premises with a view of co-operating by appropriate legislation in the recommendation of the grand jury referred to, by either providing for the early establishment of a city hospital or entering into arrangements with one of the hospitals now in Portland and the perfecting of such other arrangements as may in your best judgment seem well and proper.

CAN'T USE THE DREDGE TENDER FOR A FIRE BOAT.

The following communication from Captain Michael Hoyt, superintendent of the dredge, was read and placed on file:

To the Committee on Fire and Water—Gentlemen: In reply to your communication of August 8 in regard to the advisability of placing the city fire [illegible] the dredger tender I would say that by so doing it will greatly delay the working of the dredger as no work can be done during the absence of the tender, and as the work is from two to three miles away from the city considerable time would elapse before the boat could be brought to a fire. To make her available at night would require an extra watchman to keep up steam and an extra supply of fuel, making the expense about $150 per month, counting [illegible] delay of the dredger, the extra risk of the loss of [illegible] and the wear and tear of constant steam on the boiler.

REPORTS.

From the Committee on Streets—Recommending the passage of an ordinance prescribing the manner of filling trenches excavated for water, gas or sewer pipes. Adopted.

From the Committee on Health and Police—Recommending that further consideration of the matter of reducing the liquor license be indefinitely postponed as the passage of it would result in the dismissal of all the liquor cases now pending. Adopted.

VERY SORRY NOW THAT HE IS CAUGHT.—Thomas Allen who was arrested by Policeman Ward [illegible] charge of larceny from a dwelling was arraigned in the police court yesterday. He with his two companions, Peterson and Bell, had been working [illegible] Portland Water Company [illegible] time past [illegible] [illegible] three [illegible] and to get at a small [illegible] round class [illegible] rather close friends as the world goes. Tuesday morning Policeman Ward while on duty discovered a man pitching a roll of blankets out of the second story [illegible]. As the blankets struck the ground [illegible] some other wearing apparel was also [illegible] Ward thought he had discovered a man who was about to leave the hotel without paying his bill. [illegible] frequently been beaten in that way and together he and the police [illegible] hastened around to the back of the house. At first [illegible] but after [illegible] [illegible] who had thrown out of the window [illegible] the policeman was not wearing either his uniform or star the man gazed insultingly at him and replied "I don't know as that is any of your business. A man may do what he pleases with his own." Ward saw the force of this remark especially as the hotel keeper recognized the man as Thomas Allen, a regular boarder at his house and a man who always paid in advance. For the time being, then, Allen was unmolested, but the story of his throwing his blankets out of a window was told again and again until it finally reached the ears of Messrs. Peterson and Bell, who were about to leave the state by the steamer that evening for San Francisco. They had missed a roll of blankets, a coat and some other clothing, and after hearing the above story they came down town to the city jail and swore out a warrant for Allen's arrest. The blankets were found where he had secreted them underneath the barn. He expressed great penitence when he found that he had been caught [illegible] to plead guilty to petit larceny. [illegible] Maryland said he had nothing [illegible] told Allen to answer before the grand jury and [illegible] committed him to jail. The complaining witnesses were [illegible] in the jail in order that [illegible] when wanted [illegible] they already had bought their tickets for California.

The rivalry between the two steam rs while friendly is none the less genuine and a test of their merits by way of [illegible] son is anxiously looked forward to [illegible] firemen of the two cities more directly interested. By the way a few members of the Capital Hose team of Salem came up yesterday noon and brought with them their new hose carriage while perhaps a hundred pounds or so heavier than those owned by the Astoria boys is none the less a daisy and is built for service as well as racing and parade purposes. To this team at present is generally conceded the championship in the 300 yard run and it is their intention to retain their honors or be beaten by the liveliest kind of scratching known in the history of the northwest coast. The members are all well built athletic young chaps and they too will go for blood from the cut loose. Albany will enter two teams, Salem two, Astoria two and Eugene City probably one in the hose contest which promises to be the most interesting feature of the tournament. In view of the fact that the absence of apparatus from abroad will prevent any contest between hand engines or hook and ladder companies it has been suggested that the local committees add $100 to the prizes for hose teams and thus add additional interest to this particular feature, the competition for which is the liveliest of this occasion.

MESMERISM EXTRAORDINARY.

A REMARKABLE CASE AT POLICE HEADQUARTERS YESTERDAY

Eugene Redell Afflicted with Spinal Nervousness Under Complete Mental Control of two Men at Separate Times.

[illegible] yesterday an extraordinary instance of [illegible] mesmerism and of the complete mastery of one mind over another was brought to the notice of [illegible] at headquarters when Al Whitfield appl[illegible] for protection from Eugene Redell a man from whom it was impossible to free himself. Whitfield's first words were: "Where is the chief of police?" Immediately came from Redell: "Where is the chief of police?" The very word spoken by Whitfield was repeated by Redell and every act imitated. The [illegible] was that it [illegible] the impression that he [illegible] was trying to play a practical joke upon [illegible] Whitfield was at last [illegible] [illegible] and earnest [illegible] explain the situation [illegible] the same words and earnest [illegible] repeated by Redell [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] The strange story of the Redell case [illegible] as [illegible] and [illegible] as could be learned is [illegible] Redell [illegible] a young man and [illegible] uncle W. W. Bepoy [illegible] Saturday [illegible] at 10 [illegible] took [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] party on the sound and were great chums. A few minutes after they started out yesterday Whitfield noticed that Redell repeated his words and imitated his actions, but at first paid no attention to it. They ate luncheon together and Redell repeated every motion of Whitfield's at the table. Whitfield then went into a store, bought a pair of shoes and put them on. Redell followed suit, choosing the same style and not neglecting to pay for them. Whitfield becoming alarmed and exceedingly annoyed by his [illegible] went to police headquarters.

After the men had been in the office some time and it having been demonstrated that the insane man could not be separated from Whitfield without fainting a physician was sent for. Pending his arrival Whitfield seated himself on a lounge and there being no other seat in the room Redell stood opposite him bending his knees and coming as near a sitting posture as he could. In this position he remained for more than half an hour never taking his eyes from Whitfield. A dozen or more men came in and each fresh one wanted to see the power exerted. Whitfield accommodated them until he himself was exhausted. If Whitfield removed his hat or pulled his mustache or rose and kicked the door or laughed or looked distressed Redell did the same and he repeated every word that Whitfield spoke. Finally a policeman stepped between them and stood for perhaps fifteen seconds so as to obscure Redell's view when he fell to the floor entirely unconscious. He did not appear to be in pain though his eyes rolled occasionally and twice he wept into violent paroxysms which lasted a minute or more. After he had lain for ten minutes Whitfield returned and spoke to him. Redell moved his lips framing the words but no sound came. By this time Dr. O. H. Wheeler arrived. [illegible] given by bystanders he began a [illegible] of the case and he asked Whitfield to take hold of the prostrate man's hands and [illegible] him to rise. [illegible] and [illegible] Dr. Saylor and Dr. Nichols were then sent for [illegible] sent [illegible] [illegible] given and the patient [illegible] and gave [illegible] signs of [illegible] Dr. Wheeler kept his eyes [illegible] and then ordered him to get up. To the surprise of all present the man took a step, jumped to his feet. Dr. Wheeler [illegible] him now and [illegible] what [illegible] [illegible] Whitfield [illegible] the [illegible] more attention [illegible] [illegible] him [illegible] the others in the room. Dr. Wheeler asked the man to stand up and stretch out his arms. He obeyed and [illegible] It was impossible for two of the strongest [illegible] the room to pull his arms down, the muscles being rigid as iron. In a minute or two the doctor [illegible] tried to [illegible] and [illegible] his arms [illegible] in one [illegible] position [illegible] away the two men put such weight on [illegible] changing them. At last Dr. Wheeler ordered him to be a good boy and go to sleep and in a second he was stretched upon the lounge peacefully asleep. There he remained [illegible] awakened by Dr. Wheeler. [illegible] power to disturb him.

Very little is known of Redell or his history. He is about thirty years old and of medium height and though of a [illegible] has fine features. His malady is probably spinal nervousness [illegible] Late this afternoon [illegible] was resting comfortably and was [illegible] rational.

PUNISHED UNDER PROTEST.

D[illegible] [illegible] suit against the city [illegible] endeavored to resist the payment of [illegible] portion of their general taxes but were defeated, have been made to pungle the full amount of their taxes as assessed with marshal's costs added. The several parties refused to pay until the marshal levied on their personal property when they payed under protest. They appear determined to fight the matter to the bitter end, having appealed to the supreme court.

THE FORD SLIP TO THE SLOUGH.

It will be remembered that when the elevated railway on Third street, between J and L, was built Mr. William Dalton [illegible] of a scheme to avoid the payment of his assessment for the improvement deed [illegible] strip of two lots abutting on Third street to his son. This strip was afterwards offered for sale by the city to satisfy the assessment [illegible] there being no bidders it was bid in by the city. The committee on fire and water now contemplate utilizing the property for the purpose of running a slip or incline down to the bottom for use by the engine in case of fire in reaching the water in the slough. The three feet of property with the twelve feet alotted for a sidewalk would give the proposed slip a width of fifteen feet and the length of 100 feet would make an easy grade possible. The scheme may be [illegible] after its being carried out Mr. Dalton [illegible] to redeem the property.

THURSDAY MORNING AUGUST 21 1884

PRESIDENT WHITE FOR BLAINE.

A Letter to Theodore Roosevelt Tells Why Civil Service Reform Safe Only in Republican Hands

NANTUCKET Mass Aug [illegible] 1884.—To the Hon. Theodore Roosevelt My Dear Sir Admiration for your vigor and clearness in supporting various measures of administrative reform thus far, and the relations between us as delegates at the recent national convention, warrant a statement to you of my views as to our best course in the approaching national election

Like yourself I regard a thorough reform of the general political and administrative system in our country as by far the greatest of questions now before us and what is known as "civil service reform" as the essential germ and vital beginning of this whole better system, whether national, state or municipal As to other questions the protective system in its important features intertwined as it is with all the established industries and interests of the country neither party dares to touch Our foreign relations must be handled virtually in the same way whichever party comes into power, for in either case there being no navy to enforce our views of right a vigorous foreign policy must consist mainly of talk and of this all the other nations of the world are as well aware as our own As to the rights of colored voters in the south no promises are made which have not been made before Polygamy each party will probably try to diminish The currency question is so immediately dangerous that neither party will dare neglect it much longer

The reform in the civil service, then remains the principal question likely to require continued vigilance and sustained effort. On it I firmly believe, is to turn the future of politics in our country. It is the logical beginning of all other necessary reforms, for, until it is accomplished, the great question in the country at large and in every locality will continue to be, not how shall we carry this or that good measure, but how shall we carry this or that set of men into the offices.

It goes far deeper than any other pending question, for it aims at nothing less than to abolish the present un-republican un-democratic spoils-system which for many years has been a growing curse to the country, it proposes to destroy that aristocracy and oligarchy of political managers which admits to public offices mainly their own pensioners and henchmen and excludes the capable and honest sons of the great body of citizens of both parties who give themselves to honest toil and not to slaving for political masters It seeks to restore to the executive and legislative agents of the people time for their legitimate duties which is now consumed in the distribution and brokerage of near 100,000 offices, on the basis, not mainly of fitness, but of personal services In short, it seeks to take this vast multitude of offices out of politics, so that men shall be chosen to elective positions and continued in them for the services they can render to the public, and not for the bargains they can make with local office-seekers.

This, then being the question of all questions, the essential preliminary of all reforms, I confess frankly that if in my opinion the democratic party were more likely than the republican to carry out the reforms already begun I should not hesitate for a moment to vote the democratic ticket But what are the probabilities— nay, the certainties—in the case? I look at the democratic nominee and feel obliged to own that his administration of our state has been very vastly to his credit, and that he might be personally relied upon to favor the national reform as he has favored state reform But the nominee is decidedly the less of the two important factors in the matter The great question is What is the ground taken by the political party which would come into power with him? What can we expect from that? Now, if we take out of the democratic party a handful of men there is no one left from whom this great reform has anything to expect save bitter hostility

Look at his history as a whole It invented the spoils system formulated it and evidently wishes for nothing better than to fully restore it. Look at its recent history Take for example its treatment of Senator Pendleton He had the wisdom and foresight to recognize the importance of initiating a reform in the civil service, both as regards his country and his party Straightway he was [illegible] through the mire by the leading democratic newspapers, deprived ignominiously of the senatorship and replaced by a man infinitely his inferior in every statesmanlike quality who made himself a jeer in the old state fashion at civil service reform Nor did the democratic party of the nation treat Mr Pendleton any better than that of his state has done At their recent national convention the temporary chairman indulged in a fling at the reform and the climax was reached when General Butler was allowed grossly to insult Mr Pendleton on account of his connection with civil service reform and to declare that not a person present who was not a schoolmaster approved it This was received with universal applause and with not a dissenting voice from the entire convention then or from the democratic press since.

More fatal still to all hopes of anything better from that party was the deliberate course of that convention in framing its platform So far as this great subject was concerned it gave the candidate absolutely no plank to stand upon The reference to it is not merely an evasion it is a hint as clear as they dared make it that means will be found to nullify what has been done and to restore the old system with all its infamies

However much then I may respect Mr Cleveland for what he has done as governor I see no hope that he can have any similar career of reform as president He cannot resist his entire party They are very hungry and very thirsty with the hunger and thirst of twenty-four years and in case of victory no president without far greater support than he can hope for could resist the onset To strengthen him at Albany there was a civil service element in our state of some value but to support him at Washington that element, diluted or neutralized by the party in the whole nation will be practically infinitesimal At Albany he had backers in his party, at Washington he must stand virtually alone so far as his party is concerned With all his good intentions he would be powerless to resist the famished cohorts of plunder from east and west and south and north as the sturdiest hunter of the plains would be to withstand single and alone a rushing herd of wild buffaloes

What, on the other hand, are the chances of the reform from the Republican party? Despite many sins and shortcomings it has already done much, and is certain to do more The platform and candidate are at last committed fully and unreservedly to the right side of the question While the democratic national convention gave to its nominee no civil service plank to stand upon, the republican party gave its nominee on this question, the soundest of the whole platform—a plank hewn out by the leader of the reform in our own state and fitted in by a leader of the same sort from the state of Massachusetts Better than this the republican candidate has not only accepted it but has agreed to more than the boldest of us dared ask In the light of his experience as secretary of state, he has virtually pledged himself to labor for the extension of the system into the consular and diplomatic service If he be elected we shall have the right to insist and I fully believe we may rely—upon the extension of the system to those most important branches of the public service, so that though our national servants abroad in various grades may know less of wirepulling than at present they will know more of those things absolutely essential to any proper representation of American interests in the countries to which they are accredited, in short, that a new and grand career will be opened to the brightest and best young men in the country which has long been virtually closed to them and largely used for pensioning off decaying politicians This position of the republican platform thus distinct and decided, and this alone, determines my vote.

If it be said that Mr Blaine did not formerly support the reform, I answer that very few of us supported it or even understood it a few years ago If it be said that he has used the old methods, I answer, so have all leaders of both parties who have been prominent in national affairs Whatever men have said of him they have never charged him with want of shrewdness or quickness in ascertaining the current of public opinion or with Bourbon inability to forget outworn methods His letter of acceptance shows that he recognizes the new element which if it be not regarded will leave the party in a hopeless minority in some of the [illegible] alone some 1,000 [illegible] that in almost every one of them there is a small number, and in some a large number of men to whom this question has become paramount who have against the spoils system something of that bitter hatred which in the old days was felt against slavery and which used to be called fanaticism He knows how that old feeling developed and he can easily see how this new feeling will develop. But it may be said that the democratic party also has learned something. Doubtless it has learned something on questions already decided; but not on this all-important question of a reform in the civil service. The trouble with the democratic party for the last forty years has been that it has never seen any great question until the country, thanks to the republican party, had got past it. The only source from which the democratic party has learned anything during all these years has been republican victories On slavery the war reconstruction, finance, the currency, education in the south—on every great question—the republican party has had to educate the democratic party by republican victory And so it must be now on the civil service question Doubtless after the republican party has fully developed it and carried it to triumph the democratic party will accept it but never until then To teach the democratic party that civil service reform means anything a national victory for the republican party on its present platform is an absolute necessity

Again, some of our independent friends say Let the democratic party in and if it be not true to these reforms we will turn it out To all this comes the old answer

> I hear a lion in the lobby roar
> Pray Mr Speaker shall we shut the door
> Or shall we open the door and let him in
> And then all try to get him out again?

To sum up then, I regard this as the crisis of civil service reform which next to the abolition of human slavery will if successful be referred to in the next century as the greatest achievement of our country in this We are at the parting of the ways To place the country in the hands of the democratic party is certainly to check and probably destroy the reform for many years to bring in the republican party is to secure its regular and substantial development, therefore though my vote like yours was cast at Chicago from first to last for Mr Edmunds I purpose to vote at the coming election for Mr Blaine I remain, very truly yours

JOHN SPLAN.

His Great Skill in Matching Horses for Single-Handed Contests

From the Breeders' Gazette

Brought up in a school where match-making was one of the chief requisites to success Splan has always been noted for the excellent judgment possessed by him regarding other men's horses as well as those in his own charge This was plainly enough shown three years ago last winter when he matched Charley Ford to beat Bonesetter At that time Bonesetter had a record of 2 19 made the previous season, and was looked upon as one of the most promising horses in this country, while Ford, whose record was 2 20¼ seemed in the opinion of many capable horsemen, to have reached his limit, so far as speed was concerned He had just passed into Splan's hands and, although John had never pulled a line over the grey fellow he was confident of his ability to defeat Bonesetter When asked by a friend on what ground he considered Ford to be capable of meeting Bonesetter on even terms he said "It is like this When I had Barus and he was at his best we used to give a good many exhibitions over half mile tracks You remember how many years Goldsmith Maid's 2 18 stood as the best over a half-mile track and that it was never beaten until Barus did it From the way in which Barus used to go I made up my mind that any horse that could trot a half-mile track in 2 20 was capable of 2 16 on a mile track, and I had this in mind when Ford and Bonesetter were matched because Ford had trotted the half mile track at Cincinnati in 2 20¾ " The result of the race proved the correctness of Splan's ideas and as he subsequently gave Ford a record of 2 16¾ in the third heat of the race, it will be seen that he was not far out of the way as to the difference in point of speed between mile tracks and those of only half that distance in circumference

But whether Johnston, for all his superior speed, can beat Richball in a race between the two, is a point open to a great deal of argument Richball's forte is in living out a hotly contested race, and it is an indisputable fact that he can go the fourth mile fully as fast as he can the first Whether his opponent in the coming match is a really game horse cannot now be told because he has never been tested in a race against horses of anything like his own speed But his mile and repeat in 2 11¼ and 2 12 not long ago was evidently taken by Splan as evidence enough of his standing and on the strength of this trial the match was made It is possible, but not probable that other horses will take part in the coming race, as both the Johnston and Richball men have expressed their willingness to let in all that want to put up $ 000 a corner The only horse that would have a living chance against the two pacers is Jay-Eye-See and it is not at all probable that Mr Case desires to engage him in a race against the side wheelers

Were their Eyes Open?

New York Sun

It is now asserted on what seems to be good authority that the main facts about the Buffalo scandal were laid before many of the delegates to the Chicago convention before the nomination of Mr Cleveland In other words he was not chosen by the convention as its candidate for president in utter ignorance of the risk involved This may be true It is nevertheless true that the democratic party at large the great body of democratic voters throughout the land and the newspaper press opposed to Mr Blaine and to continued republican rule remained in absolute ignorance of the existence of these charges until weeks after the nomination of the machine candidate It is likely moreover that the stories whispered at Chicago took no very definite form

The same thing cannot be said of the information furnished to the independent republicans who adopted Governor Cleveland as their candidate at the recent conference in this city and who declared in their address to the country that the paramount issue of the presidential election of this year is moral rather than political

We find in the Brooklyn Daily Times this distinct assertion

"Before the conference met before the address read by George William Curtis was prepared Mr Curtis knew, and the other leaders in this movement knew that Grover Cleveland had been branded as a moral leper Here are the names of some of the men who informed Mr Curtis of the facts, who stand responsible for the charges and who implored Mr Curtis to look at the evidence in their possession before he indorsed Grover Cleveland

Rev Dr Mitchell First Presbyterian church Buffalo

Rev Dr Gordon, First Baptist church Buffalo

Rev Dr Ball, Hudson Street Baptist church Buffalo

Rev Dr Green, Lafayette Street Baptist church Buffalo

Rev Dr Hubbell, North Presbyterian church Buffalo.

Rev. Mr Chivers, Prospect Avenue Baptist church Buffalo

Rev H G Lord, West Side Presbyterian church Buffalo

These men are not politicians Most of them supported Mr Cleveland when he ran for mayor of Buffalo They investigated the charges that were made against him with reluctance they have found evidence that they hold to be unassailable, and they stand determined not on political but on moral grounds to compel his retirement from the democratic ticket "

The only ground left for independent republicans who still desire to support Mr Cleveland is indicated by the Evening Post in an article which we copy It is a remarkable defense to offer as a supplement to the independent address It declares in effect that the paramount issue of the presidential election is political, not moral

What will be the effect upon the minds of the wavering voters of the revelations supposing that only so much is true as is openly admitted in the versions of the scandal supplied by Governor Cleveland's independent supporters It seems to us that a great deal depends on the manner in which the immediate friends and responsible representatives of the democratic candidate shall be able to meet and overcome the defense of these volunteer defenders

The Field of Gettysburg.

Philadelphia Times

The field of Gettysburg promises to be the most accurately marked battlefield in the world In addition to the large number of tablets and stones erected already to mark the position of troops and to designate the spots where the various events in that wonderful fight took place, a great many more will be put in place during the summer A committee of the Seventeenth regiment Connecticut volunteers visited the field and determined upon a spot to locate a memorial to mark the position of that regiment in the first and second days of the battle The tablet will probably be placed in position on July 1 On the 2d the Fourteenth regiment will erect a stone to mark its position during the fight The dedication of these memorials will bring the governor and his staff and many other prominent people of Connecticut to take part in the ceremonies Representatives of various other regiments from the different states will visit the field soon to arrange for memorials to mark the positions occupied by troops

The Harpers and Mr Blaine.

Salt Lake Tribune

Mr Blaine did not give the book to the Harpers and so the Harpers, while recognizing the fact that there is no man living more closely in sympathy with the people than Mr Blaine oppose him So, notwithstanding that the delicate touch of Joe Harper on the popular pulse which is generally healthy," makes him certain that it beats strongly in admiration and affection for the man who has been absolutely fearless in his patriotism" he opposes him The "human real flesh and blood record of the brave fighter and gallant leader," was denied to Harper Brothers hence on principle they oppose him The man whom Mr Joe Harper was "entirely willing to go down to the sidewalk with uncovered head to meet and help unload the manuscript for" gave his history to another publishing house and hence on principle the Harpers oppose him They order their editor, who was a conspicuous actor in the convention that nominated Mr Blaine to assail him and the willing serf obeys though in doing so he has to stultify his whole record for the past twenty years They order their picture maker to denounce him in cartoons and so that man makes pictures to lie about him even as Curtis took language to bear false witness against him If the matter was simply between Mr Blaine and the firm of Harpers Brothers it would not touch matter But this action of the paper goes much deeper The firm deliberately says to the American people "Though your instincts are all right and though you desire the election of a man in whom you feel a deep sympathy because of his fearless patriotism you shall not have him because he took his book to another house for publication You shall not have the brave fighter and gallant leader" who was brave and gallant at a most critical time in the nation's history because he refused us his book True, a few months ago we were willing to go out on the sidewalk with uncovered heads obsequiously to this man but he would not accept our homage would not give his real flesh and blood record to us and now naturally on principle and for strictly personal reasons we oppose him Never was a press more prostituted never was a [illegible] more [illegible] never was a newspaper more stultified never was a firm more disgraced than in this exhibition And never was a [illegible] more [illegible] [illegible] When the charges against Blaine were first brought eight years ago Harper's Weekly investigated them and declared there was nothing in them It did the same four years ago Only a few months ago the head of the house of Harpers Brothers was disgusting in his toadyism to Blaine. Now, for the meanest of mercenary motives and to gratify a debased spite, the house turns its presses and pens against him Such an opposition ought to make Blaine votes all over the Union

ABD-EL-KADER.

Marshal Bugeaud's Interview with the Lion of Algeria

From Memories of Bugeaud, by Comte d'Ideville

I had made peace I did not choose to be contented with the signature or seal of a chief I wished to have it sanctioned by the Arab people and so demanded an interview with Abd-el-Kader He at once consented and so we fixed the meeting place on the banks of the Tafna, at a spot called [illegible] It is not a village only a ravine [Laughter] It was four leagues from my camp nine from Abd-el-Kader's He came five leagues more than I did to the meeting place I do not see that there is any reflection on the national dignity in that [Applause from the centre] It was natural for me to arrive before him He was very late and I afterwards learned why, it was because he wanted to collect as many people as possible He marched very slowly because his troops were reaching him from all sides It was 4 o'clock in the afternoon when an army appeared at the end of the valley This valley is especially narrow and full of hillocks There is no long view in it Impatient at having waited so long, and desirous of bringing my soldiers back to camp for they had brought none of the materials required for making soup and I care very much for my soldiers having their soup in time [Laughter] I determined to enter the valley myself with thirty of my officers All at once I found myself surrounded by Abd-el-Kader's outposts I had them before and behind —they came from everywhere [Laughter] My chief of staff M de Moussion said to me "We are in danger let us get back as quick as possible" I answered "No it is too late on the contrary we must show them a noble confidence must go to them" and I started at a gallop [These words spoken sharply by the general while he snapped his fingers brought some approving laughter from the chamber] I reached Abd-el-Kader who was himself advancing to the appointed place We met and I proposed to him to dismount He did so and sat upon the grass I sat by his side I can declare to you here that it was I who always played the first in the conversation I interrogated him I asked him questions, he answered me in monosyllables for the Arabs are small speakers and have not the French fault [Laughter] This conversation lasted about forty minutes When I had said to Abd-el-Kader all I had to say to him I rose Abd-el-Kader remained seated. I fancied I saw in this act a certain notion of superiority so I made my interpreter tell him "When a French general rises before you you should also rise" and while my interpreter was translating my words, I took Abd-el-Kader by the hand and lifted him up, he is not very heavy

Gustavus Adolphus' Collar

There is a curious relic of Gustavus Adolphus in the possession of a private family at Augsburg. It is an embroidered collar said to have been worn by the king at a ball and is now kept in a glass case together with the following note This collar was worn by Gustavus Adolphus king of Sweden and was given as a keepsake to my beloved wife Jakobina Lauber who at the time of the king's sojourn in this town was the most beautiful among the maidens His majesty deigned to dance several times with her, but on his becoming too familiar she 'collared' him and as a reward for this act of valor received the collar [illegible] that night The Dieghlatt which publishes this story refrains from making any comments except the innocent remark The queen was at that time at Stockholm

Sabbath Keeping in Scotland

Whitehall Review Not many years ago a [illegible] kirk worthy now at rest was engaged in his favorite pastime of fishing on a well known salmon river in the north of Scotland when he got into conversation with a farmer and asked him how the recently appointed Free Kirk minister was getting on in his parish The farmer after considerable hesitation admitted that the reverend gentleman was not so great a favorite as he might have been because it had been discovered that he was in the habit of shaving on Sunday morning But, expostulated the piscator you might as well say that a man must not wash his face on Sunday "Wash my face on the Sabbath" said the farmer "I haven't washed my face on Sabbath for five and twenty years"
